The prosperity of modern Uzbek society is directly related to its material and spiritual spheres. Overcoming crisis situations in social life, economic, ecology, demographics due to global changes around the world and in our country requires collaborative efforts of the state and citizens to build a new type of society, in which the existing negative states of modern life are eliminated. What kind of society is this? This answer seems familiar to everyone: it is a legal society. Independent Uzbekistan is one of the main conditions for raising the legal knowledge of members of society and building a legal democratic state. People who are legally educated can feel that the legal state is based on the rule of law. As the president noted, both the arms and the protection and the eye and the word of the legal state are law. In a legal state, laws should always be a priority. At the same time, the development of legal technologies in schoolchildren is formed, first of all, under the influence of legal education. Legal education contributes to an increase in the level of discipline, strengthening the sense of duty and responsibility, and an increase in the legal culture of schoolchildren. The development of legal technologies of future teachers on the basis of an innovation approach also requires the upbringing of especially student-youth in the spirit of patriotism in order to establish a legal state and Legal Society. Because love for the motherland, patriotic feelings are not things that arise in a person spontaneously, unconsciously, are formed. They are formed and developed in each person on the basis of the education of society, influenced by the social cultural environment that surrounds it in society. Of course, these qualities are matured in the activities of the individual. Therefore, on the basis of such an innavational approach as perfection, erudition, cocktails, moral purity, the formation of feelings inherent in citizens is important in the maturation of a humane, patriotic person. Because, these qualities increase spiritual and moral potential and social activity in a person, while accelerating socio-economic development, develop the duty and responsibility for performing the tasks of developing legal technologies. Therefore, the coming of age of healthy, believing, mentally thoughtful, morally pure, self-aware of their rights, duties and responsibilities forms the basis of the Society for the development of legal technologies of future teachers on the basis of an innavational approach. Therefore, further weakening of democratic changes in the country and the formation of the foundations of a legal society, the improvement of the legal education of the younger generation, whose builders are considered, are considered urgent problems. Formation of a legal culture of the development of legal technologies: prevention of escalating khalkaro terrorism, religious fundamentalism and extremism, giving ruy in Jahan; weakening of interest of some young people in education, work, socio-political life, elimination of drug abuse, alcoholism, violations that escalated between them; he fully fulfills the requirements of each person, such as being a free, independent conscious, creative, enterprising and full-fledged person with rights and man, as an active participant in public administration, bringing to adulthood. The development of legal technologies of future teachers on the basis of a moral approach is a vaccine: a chukur Angerer of his duties and obligations, an active participant in the journey of life in society, a debater of current and economic tasks facing the Legal Society, a direct and indirect participant in the management of society, a creator of material and spiritual, it is manifested as a person who fights for the prestige of the nation and the country, provides for the defense of the motherland. A person whose legal culture is at a high level" ..a person who understands the ratio of the benefits that he gives to society and the interests that he receives from society is a subject who adheres strictly to the fact that in his practice this ratio is not disturbed by balance" [52; 29-b]. While legal education and the formation of a legal culture in it is considered a complex process with a specificity of duration, years of study will lay the foundation for this process. "Upbringing" in schools "fundamentals of spirituality", "history of Uzbekistan", "fundamentals of constitutional law", "foundations of economic knowledge", as well as one major specialty subjects according to the direction of the educational institution have great opportunities in the development of legal culture, legal consciousness, legal technologies in students. Consequently, in the teaching of these subjects, students get acquainted with the spiritual and moral qualities that are reflected in the image of a competent person, his physical layout and participation in the process of social relations, critically evaluate the peculiarities inherent in their character and try to lose their negative behavior. The development of legal technologies of future teachers on the basis of an innovative approach is the integrative formation of the individual in the maturation of the self-legal, moral and political ability of a person. The main elements of the future teachers are introduced into the akhlokian and legal culture, which is expressed in people with a responsible attitude towards their state and respect for other people. Its structural elements consist of the likes of akhlokian upbringing, patriotic upbringing, legal upbringing, which are composed in a state of interdependence. The culture of the innovation approach is a link to the objective state, the level of development of democracy and humanism in society, the formation of the nuktai eyes of every citizen, self-awareness. The culture of the innovation approach is formed on the basis of the development of legal technologies by students and a deep understanding of the essence of the qualities that represent this state of affairs. In this regard, it is advisable to familiarize students with the actions necessary to be carried out by a citizen in the process of social relations of various content, their socio-ideological peculiarities. In this place, the spiritual and educational activities organized in schools play an important role. Taking into account also the influence of the social environment in the development of the culture of the innovation approach in its students makes it possible to achieve the expected result. After all, the circumstances that occur in the social environment, their orientation, content and essence, spiritual and moral views that have a priority in society directly affect the formation of future teachers as citizens.

Conclusion

This article argues that the long-term prosperity and stability of Uzbek society depend on balanced development in both the material and spiritual domains and, crucially, on the consolidation of a legal society grounded in the supremacy of law. Legal education in schools functions as a formative mechanism that strengthens discipline, responsibility, and legal culture, while also shaping students' capacity to participate consciously in social life and public governance. From this perspective, developing the legal “technologies” and competencies of future teachers through an innovative, integrative approach is not merely a pedagogical task but a strategic condition for democratic modernization. The convergence of moral upbringing, patriotic education, and legal instruction creates a coherent framework for nurturing citizens who understand their rights and duties, respect others, and uphold lawful conduct. Moreover, strengthening legal culture contributes to prevention of destructive social risks—including extremism, substance abuse, and civic disengagement—by reinforcing critical awareness and ethical self-regulation. Therefore, systematic improvement of curricula, school-based spiritual-enlightenment activities, and socially supportive environments is essential to prepare future teachers who can transmit legal values effectively and sustain the foundations of a lawful, humane, and democratic society.
