Abstract

A system of effective and innovative strategies for learning and teaching foreign languages is outlined. Outlining such a system presupposes the use of both theoretical methods of analyzing a number of strategies for learning foreign languages. Human beings need to communicate on a daily basis for different purposes. They communicate to inform each other, to express their feelings, to influence others, to meet social expectations, to do business, to gain knowledge and skills, and so on. The factors that will lead to effective communication, a language, message and attitude play a big role for this purpose. A language is a tool of communication. Erlinda (2010) stated that both animal and human beings can communicate to each other. Languages are acquired or learned. English is one of those tools of Communication.

Introduction

In today's connected world, learning English has become more important than ever. As a global language of business, education and communication, English opens doors to countless opportunities. English language learning benefits include better career prospects, increased cultural understanding and improved communication skills. At Oxford International, we understand that learning a new language can be challenging, but with the right study techniques, you can make your English learning journey both effective and enjoyable. Learning English requires more than just memorizing vocabulary and grammar rules. To improve your English skills effectively, you need a structured approach that works for you. Many students struggle because they haven't found the right way to study. Let's explore some proven techniques to help you master English more efficiently.

Immersion and Daily Habits

- Create an English Environment: Switch your phone, computer, and social media settings to English.
- Consume English Media: Watch movies and TV shows (using subtitles), listen to English music, and watch YouTube channels.
- Read Regularly: Read news articles, blogs, or books at your level to see vocabulary in context.
- Think in English: Practice converting your inner monologue to English to improve fluency.

Active Learning Techniques

- Speak Daily: Practice speaking with language partners, tutors, or by talking to yourself.
- Use the "Shadowing" Technique: Listen to a native speaker and immediately repeat what they say to improve pronunciation and intonation.
- Keep a Vocabulary Journal: Write down new words, their definitions, and example sentences.
- Use Flashcards: Use apps like Anki or Quizlet to memorize new vocabulary.

Structured Practice

- Set Specific Goals: Define what you want to achieve (e.g., passing an exam, holding a 5-minute conversation).
- Study in Short Sessions: Frequent, shorter study sessions are often more effective than infrequent long ones.
- Focus on Phrases, Not Just Words: Learn common phrases and idioms to understand how words work together.
- Take Online Courses: Utilize platforms like the British Council for structured lessons, suggests the British Council.

Common Pitfalls to Avoid

- Fear of Making Mistakes: Speaking frequently, even with errors, is better than not speaking at all.
- Focusing Only on Grammar: Focus on communication and context rather than solely on rules.

Let me ask you something... How often do you listen to music? Every week? Every day? Or even every hour? I can tell that most of us loves hearing music. We can listen to our favorite songs or album for hours and still having fun. Some songs may even get our attention and then stuck in our head. Repeating the lyrics over and over. This could help us learn the words from the lyrics and grammar that goes along with it. And later, we might be able to use these words and grammar constructions because we've heard them so many times. This type of method does not apply for learning English only. We can use it to learn all the languages that are existed in the world. We just have to make sure what language is used in the song.

CONCLUSION:

There is a fun and easy way to learn English. It is through music. Because it is simple and also useful for various aspects of our lives that we do not expect.

Music, especially English music, can affect our learning process through two forms of language. As it said: In English language teaching, it is necessary to identify language performance. The human race has fashioned two forms of productive performance, oral and written, and two forms of receptive performance, aural (or auditory) and reading. Language is distinguished into two types, namely, spoken language and written language. Listening and Speaking are identified as spoken language, while Reading and Writing are identified as written language. Many people in the world want to speak English fluently without considering that they have to master other skills of English as well. As a result, much of language-teaching energy is devoted to instruction in mastering English conversation with neglecting the importance to incorporate of numerous other forms of spoken language into a language course, especially in teaching listening comprehension

(Rintaningrum, 2018)

As it used little by little, It can really affects our own self development. Self-development is another word for personal development. Self-development is activities that are intended to improve or develop ourselves (Rintaningrum, 2019) That's all what the essay is about. I hope as it being used, this method will be slowly make every one of us useful for our generation's voice to the outside world. Thank You.
