Introduction

It is known from time immemorial that in all great countries, special attention is paid to the education of young people. After all, it is physically healthy and mentally capable young people who create the foundation for the power and prosperity of their country. Every parent, in turn, dreams of their child's perspective, happiness and independent life in the future, becoming a physically, spiritually and mentally mature generation. Therefore, parents should help their children to spend their youth with meaningful, exemplary, useful and meritorious activities.

In the religion of Islam, it is recommended to teach children good morals and manners from childhood.

In our religion, great importance is attached to bringing up young people with virtues such as honesty, keeping promises, faithfulness, respect for elders, respect for children, kindness to others. Our Prophet Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, says this in his hadith: "It is better for a person to educate his child and teach him something than to give him something in charity" (narrations of Imam Tirmidhi).

It should also be noted that making good use of free time of our youth and teaching them professions is the same thing. Our Prophet, may God's prayers and peace be upon him, praised hardworking and skilled people and said: "Allah loves a skilled person" (narrations of Imam Tirmidhi).

There is also a saying in our people: "If you walk near a cauldron, you will get black." Hasan Basri, may Allah bless him and grant him peace, once asked the people: "What will be done after the crops are ripe?" - they asked. They said: "The harvest will be harvested." Then Hasan Basri, may God bless him and grant him peace, said: "Know that sometimes before the crops are ripe, disaster, disease can strike them and kill them." they are The period of youth is the best opportunity to preserve the purity of the soul, to fill it with the light of faith and knowledge.

As everyone dreams that their child will be happy, educated, and respected in this world, and in the hereafter, he will be in heaven. it is also necessary to avoid the intrigues of others and to teach other necessary things.

You yourself are witnessing that large-scale work is being carried out in our country for the purpose of education and development of young people. To increase reading among young people, new libraries are being established, competitions are being held, clubs and technoparks are being opened in places to organize their free time in a meaningful way, and various privileges are being given to young scientists.

In particular, the fact that 2024 was announced by the Honorable President Shavkat Mirziyoyev as the "Year of supporting youth and business" in Uzbekistan is a clear proof of how much attention is paid to the education of young people in our country.

After all, young people with strong faith, knowledge, and physical health are the guarantee of the great future of the country. All this is a clear example of the attention paid by our government to the education of our children and to be a generation worthy of their ancestors. We hope that these initiatives will definitely bear fruit in our near future. It is known from time immemorial that in all great countries, special attention is paid to the education of young people. Many opportunities have been created for today's youth. Our young people should use these opportunities wisely and correctly. But, unfortunately, some children, especially school-age boys, spend most of their time playing all kinds of inappropriate games on the Internet and in playstation clubs, watching pictures and videos that harm the heart and faith of a person, and talking to strangers who lead them astray from the right path. , are wasting the golden age of their lives.

Also, in some families, children's upbringing is completely entrusted to television or telephone devices. Their children are "educated" not by themselves, but by those technical devices. We should not forget that every father is responsible for the upbringing of his children and we should not forget that it is the father who will be asked about this in the Hereafter.

You yourself are witnessing that large-scale work is being carried out in our country for the purpose of education and development of young people. All this is a clear example of the attention paid by our government to the education of our children and to be a generation worthy of their ancestors. We hope that these initiatives will bear fruit in our near future, inshallah.

The head of Uzbekistan has repeatedly emphasized that the investment allocated for the prospects of youth is the most effective investment for the future, and the level and quality of education is an important factor that determines the prospects of any country. Admission quotas to higher educational institutions have been significantly expanded. Correspondence and evening forms of higher education have been restored.

Also, it is no exaggeration to say that the promotion of 5 important initiatives for our children to acquire knowledge, profession and fully show their talents from a young age has opened another new stage in the history of Uzbekistan in the field of youth education. It is no coincidence that this noble idea of the head of our state was received with great interest by the people of Uzbekistan, especially the youth, and in a short period of time, it was widely embraced throughout the country. Because the more attention is paid to supporting the young generation in every way, raising them to be spiritually mature, physically healthy, patriotic and selfless, protecting their rights and interests, the more effective it will be. Therefore, in Uzbekistan, young people, who are an active layer of society, are not viewed as a "problem" like some countries that consider themselves "developed", but as a great force that ensures the development of the country. As a result, today highly educated, modern-thinking, determined young people are increasingly becoming a decisive force in the future development of the country.

It is of great importance that President Shavkat Mirziyoyev drew the attention of not only our country, but also the entire world community to the education, spirituality and protection of the rights of young people, and proposed the adoption of the UN Convention on Youth Rights. This proposal was warmly welcomed by the international community. It is a clear fact that today the number of young people in the world is more than two billion, and borderless threats such as information attacks, "mass culture", international terrorism and extremism are growing rapidly, creating the need for reliable protection of young and innocent souls. Unfortunately, due to the emergence of these threats, some malicious forces are trying to portray religion and the state as opposition to each other, especially to distort the fundamentals of the holy religion of Islam.

It is known that the first word of the Qur'anic verses was revealed with the command "Iqra" (that is, arrow). Isn't that a sign of how much attention is paid to knowledge in our holy religion?! Because our religion is the religion of knowledge and enlightenment, in which ignorance and ignorance are always condemned. The prosperity, stability and happiness of the world are, of course, closely related to science and enlightenment. Hazrat Ali, may God bless him and grant him peace, said, "Knowledge is better than wealth, it protects you, and you are obliged to protect wealth. Knowledge is the ruler, wealth is the prisoner. If wealth decreases by spending and giving alms, it will increase as you spread knowledge."

In fact, today, when the world is floating in the eye of a person like a ringed glass, various malicious forces are increasing, which are misleading the youth and want to draw them into their trap. The saddest thing is that wherever a crime is committed in any part of the world, the ignorance of young people and their inability to distinguish between black and white is used.

The analyzes show that neglecting the upbringing of children in the family can be the basis for the moral decline of not only that household, but also the entire nation. There are many examples of this in history. Today in the world there is a struggle for human capital, the biggest investment is in the education and upbringing of a child, unfortunately, there is a situation of neglecting the education of children in some families. Therefore, we should not forget the wisdom of our Prophet Muhammad, may God bless him and grant him peace, that "No parent can leave a more valuable legacy to their child than a good upbringing."

In a word, since time immemorial, our nation has had a high motivation for science, creativity, and work, and has always been an example with its high spirituality, faith, national pride, and beautiful manners that are adapted to universal human values. Therefore, we believe that our innocent and wonderful young people will be children who will use the created conditions and opportunities wisely and contribute to the development of our country and the rise of our people.
